CHARLESTON MAKING GREAT PREPARATIONS

SOUTHERN COMMERCIAL CONGRESS AND MANY OTHER ATTRACTIONS

MANY EXPECTED

Meeting of Congress to Celebrate Establishment of Peace 50 Years Ago.

Charleston, Nov. 9.—With the early days of November has come great activity on the part of the local organization, co-operating with the organization at Washington, to prepare Charleston as the hostess city of the Southern Commercial Congress, the Atlantic battleship fleet and thousands of visitors from all parts of South Carolina and the South. Almost daily, at the present time, there is a meeting of one of the efficient committees of the local organization and the vim with which these committees have taken hold is in itself an assurance of the successful session which the purposes and aims of the congress justify.

Celebrating the victories of 50 years of peace in the United States, the seventh annual convention of the congress in Charleston will be addressed on 15 big vital subjects by more than half a hundred of the ablest and most widely known men of today from all parts of this and foreign countries. In conjunction with the session, which will be called to order December 13 and which will continue through December 17, the woman's auxiliary of the congress will hold its annual convention here, as will many other organizations.

Leading the program of entertainment for the throngs that will be besiege the old city will be the great Atlantic battleship fleet. An army and navy parade will be a notable feature of the amusement program, and those who witness it will have something to remember long. Sailors from the battleships anchored in the harbor, regulars from the army post at Fort Moultrie and the militia of the state will be in the line of uniformed men participating in what perhaps will be the most extensive review of troops ever seen in South Carolina since the days of 1864-65. A specially selected carnival, water and field sports and every other device for the entertainment of the city's guests will be included in the complete program.

Under the auspices of the woman's auxiliary, the congress will be called to order on Monday afternoon, December 13, the day being designated as "Community Day." December 14 will be celebrated as "Peace Day," December 15 as "Navy Day," December 16 as "Foreign Trade Day," and December 17 as the "South's Day."

As the woman's auxiliary figures, and quite properly to a large extent, in the plans for "Community Day," the battleship fleet will occupy, figuratively, the center of the state on "Peace Day" as the Army and Navy parade will be the hub of the program on "Navy Day" and as the house of southern governors will be in prominence on "Foreign Trade Day." On the "South's Day," the final and big day of the convention, the southern cotton congress and the big conference on the important subject of immigration will hold full sway.

The cooperation of more than 13 organizations, leaders and members of which will gather here for the congress, has been secured, assuring a full and fair discussion of all subjects from every point of view.

Some of the organizations co-operating are: The League to Enforce Peace; International Institute of Agriculture, Rome, Italy; Pan-American Union; American Committee on Agricultural Colonization; United States Commission on Rural Finance; National Marketing Commission; Rural Credit League of America; Southern Commercial Secretaries Association; National Drainage Congress; Southern Cotton Congress; International Municipal Congress; Rivers and Harbors Congress and the House of Southern Governors.

The wide scope of subjects to be discussed: Peace, Education, National Defense, Public Health, Public Efficiency, Social Conditions, Drainage, Rivers and Harbors, Foreign Trade, Merchant Marine, Cotton, Rural Credit, Marketing, Good Roads and Agricultural Colonization, leads to the co-operation of the several organizations named, a significant part in the program.

The league to enforce peace, for instance, has charge, most appropriately, of the program for the celebration and discussion of peace, while the various agricultural organizations have in hand the plans for an enlightening discussion of drainage, cotton, rural credit, marketing, good roads and agricultural colonization. Great educators will discuss education and prominent advocates of a better national defense will discuss this subject. So, throughout the program, organizations and speakers have been assigned that part to which they are most suited by virtue of their aims and accomplishments.

Reduced railroad rates from all points to Charleston on account of the congress will bring a trip to the city at that time within the reach of everyone, and in the exhaustive program outlined will be found something of interest to every individual to whom the coming of everyone worth while.

Under the annual opportunity of seeing the Atlantic battleship fleet anchored in South Carolina waters, and the opportunity of viewing almost every variety of amusement, since but a hundred speakers there is most certainly at least one person

STRENUOUS EFFORTS TO SAVE TREASURES

ART MUSEUM CONTENTS WERE TAKEN FROM GERMAN'S REACH

WAS ARDUOUS TASK

Priceless Art Treasures Were Taken From Paris to Safe Place.

Paris, Oct. 31.—(Associated Press Correspondence.)—Many conflicting reports have been published of the circumstances under which the art treasures of Paris were placed in safety while the Germans were approaching the capital. Albert Dallery, Under Secretary for Fine Arts, now gives the exact details in an interview published here.

"As early as August," Mr. Dallery says, "I had considered with my colleagues the measures to be taken to save our art treasures from the eventuality of the German invasion. We did not want to alarm the public by taking such steps before they became absolutely imperative. It was only when von Kluck approached Paris with remarkable rapidity, that we decided to act, and we were obliged to act quickly. They gave me forty-eight hours to pack up the rarest objects of our collection and send them out of Paris, by railroad, to be sheltered in an important city of the south of France. The task was arduous and delicate. The most insignificant incident might compromise the operation. It was necessary to act with the utmost rapidity and with the utmost discretion. In a very short time, we established a list of 710 canvases that we considered it necessary to put into a place of safety. Only 250 pictures were removed from the museums in 1870 during the siege of Paris; comparatively our task was far greater. Some experts declared that it was impossible in view of the mobilization of the greater part of the personnel of the museums, but we were determined to make the maximum effort. All the furniture-moving houses in Paris called upon by telephone to send every available moving van immediately and the removal of the pictures and statuary began at once. The Venus de Milo, which weighs three tons, gave us the greatest trouble, after which the most delicate operations were the packing and removal of the precious objects and furniture of the Louvre. As for the Crown diamonds, their removal was a delicate task that Henri Marcel, director of the National Museums, and myself decided that we could not delegate to anyone. Procuring an ordinary leather satchel, we placed the diamonds in it and left for the railroad station at nightfall. The situation was disquieting, for a number of reasons. The station was crowded, the streets full of people hurrying out of Paris before the approaching army.

"We dined at the buffet of the railroad station—very poorly, because the responsibility of the safety of those jewels spoiled our appetites. It seemed to both of us that the eyes of every person in the restaurant were fixed upon that leather bag, and it occurred to us what a simple matter it would be for an ill-deserving adventurer to make a considerable haul that evening in the confusion of the exodus. We succeeded in getting places in the train, crowded to overflowing, with panicky passengers. When we arrived at our journey's end we were not at the end of our troubles with those famous jewels. It was almost impossible to find a safe in which to put them. We had been preceded, it seemed, by every owner of a pearl necklace in Paris, and all the boxes of the only safe deposit places in the city were already filled. We finally found an empty drawer in the safe of a branch of a Parisian bank and it is there the jewels of the crown have been in safe-keeping ever since, always under the watchful eye of men from the Fine Arts, men detailed by the bank, and all of them supervised by private detectives.

"The watch over the paintings and objects of art is an even more important affair. They filled scores of baggage vans assembled in a large courtyard where there were formerly shoe shops, bookshops and small tradespeople of all sorts, who gave their establishments in order to contribute to the safety of the National Art Treasures. All the doors leading to the courtyard were sealed up, bars placed on all windows, fire fighting apparatus installed and constantly, day and night, the entire block around this courtyard was patrolled by detachments of firemen.

"In addition to the art treasures of the Louvre and other Paris museums, such as the Luxembourg and Cluny, the chateaux of Fontainebleau and Compiègne were stripped of everything that was movable and the greater part of the art treasures of Arras have also been saved.

AT THE THEATRES

A PAIR OF SIXES

One of the Cleverest Plays Ever Seen On Local Stage Delighted Large Audience.

"The Cleverest play ever seen on the local stage" is "A Pair of Sixes" presented last evening at the Anderson. One of the largest audiences of the season enjoyed the performance most thoroughly. The first act ran rather slowly for a while, but this was necessary inasmuch as the ground work or plot of the screaming farce had to be laid, and the more or less mechanical action of setting plots in motion is not always so amusing. But with the second act the fun began to show up in goodly measure, and before the curtain descended on the third and final act the audience was indulging without restraint or regard for their threats, in screams.

The plot of the piece is so admirable that a troupe of mediocre ability would have no difficulty in putting it across the footlights in a manner that would be productive of laughter, but entrusted to the hands of persons of ability, it is a screamer. T. Bogs John, alias, on the right hand side of the list of characters, Daniel J. Sullivan, co-partner in the Eureka Digestive Dill company, and later but in the mansion of his partner with whom he could not do business in an amicable manner, is the chief fun producer, and he is an artist of no mean ability in his line. Playing opposite him in the laying of the plot that was productive of the fun, was Miss Gertrude Fowler, as Florence Cole. Her work was equally as good. Other parts were admirably done, and, altogether, the company is a most excellent one.

HEAVY MEAT EATERS

HAVE SLOW KIDNEY?

Eat less meat if you feel Backache or have Bladder trouble.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which excites the kidneys, they become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood, then we get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidney or your back hurts or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, stop eating meat and get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, and in a few days your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithium and has been used for generations by men and women to stimulate the kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent little water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

Every Family Needs This Splendid Remedy

Compound of Simple Laxative Herbs Recommended for Constipation.

When a remedy has stood the test of critical analysis and strong competition for over a quarter of a century and establishes itself as the indispensable household remedy in thousands of homes, it is pretty good evidence of its efficacy.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has been on the market since 1889, its use being gradually extended until now it is generally regarded by druggists as the staple family laxative. It is a combination of simple laxative herbs, free from opiates or narcotic drugs, gentle in its action and positive in effect. It costs only fifty cents a bottle and can be purchased in drug stores everywhere.

Mr. Frank Klima, of 2809 Ashland Ave., Baltimore, Md., wrote Dr. Caldwell recently that he had tried until everything without being helped until he got a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which he considers the greatest known remedy for indigestion, constipation and stomach troubles.
